Nancy has been helping people grow and develop in their relationships, vocation, and life for over 30 years. Her passion and purpose are to promote flourishing in others and create impact for the greater good by developing people to lead in organizations consciously, by bringing their BEST self to their work and the world. These individuals engage in deep personal development that encourages them to live and lead from an integrated place of personal values and a deep sense of meaning and purpose which contribute to the betterment of the organization, community, and world.

Nancy provides coaching and consultation to many leaders and organizations in the areas of change management, conflict management, leadership skills, healthy team development, strategic planning, personality preferences in the workplace, team accountability, emotional intelligence, and appreciative inquiry. Nancy has also received extensive training in a variety of leadership and organizational assessments that provides the foundation for more evidence-based work.

Nancy is Founder and CEO of the Leadership Evolvment Institute. She serves as adjunct faculty at The Chicago School for Professional Psychology in Chicago, IL teaching classes in clinical interviewing, counseling skill development, group process and therapeutic skill, and organizational consulting. She serves as the director for the Benedictine University's L.E.A.D.S. program- a four-year undergraduate leadership development program for undergraduate women. Nancy also works with the Oikos Institute as the People and Culture Consultant. She also taught as adjunct faculty at North Central College, in Naperville, IL teaching classes in organizational design, organizational assessment, and high potential leadership coaching, and at Aurora University, in Aurora, Illinois

Nancy is the co-author of the GPSS Leadership Coach Training Program where she has trained many leaders in the coaching discipline. She has worked closely with faculty from Garrett Evangelical Theological Seminary, Northern Seminary, and has provided training for faculty and students at Yonsei University in Seoul, Korea.

Nancy has a Ph.D. from Benedictine University School of Business, Lisle, IL in Values-Driven Leadership and received the Outstanding Dissertation Award. She has a Master of Science degree in Counseling and Guidance from Indiana University, South Bend, IN and is a Licensed Clinical Professional Counselor in the State of Illinois and a Professional Certified Coach through the International Coach Federation. She has received extensive training in organizational development, including a Certificate in Church Leadership from Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management's Center for Nonprofit Management and Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary, Evanston, IL, and a post Graduate certificate in Organizational Development from Benedictine University in Lisle, IL.
